

Make it Open

Schooling

massive online open course

The course will introduce participants to Open Schooling as well as Maker Movement's ideas and pedagogy. It will illustrate how the Open Schooling approach to teaching and learning can be integrated in educational activities – particularly science education – and be coupled with Maker pedagogy.

from: 09.01.23
to: 15.02.23

Target audience

Primary and secondary school teachers, Science teachers, curriculum designers and non-formal education professionals who want to put schools at the heart of their local community, e.g., museum educators, etc.

Learning objectives

- Introduce participants to Open Schooling (OS), Maker pedagogy, as well as Inquiry-Based Learning and help them understand how they can be integrated in their educational activities.
- Empower teachers with a new methodology and support its use via the creation of an engaged community.
- Introduce the Navigator as well as the other ready to use materials created within Make it Open and guide participants to their use.
- Provide a detailed guide (and concrete examples) for the creation of an Open Schooling LS and/or education activity.
- Promote the Make it Open (MiO) project and its outcomes (the Navigator, the Hubs, etc.) as tools to empower teachers and educators.
- Create a network of teachers/educators familiar with and enthusiastic about Open Schooling.
